Government Guidance

The Government has now introduced stricter measures on social distancing, and things are likely to get even stricter in the coming days and weeks.

If you haven't already, you must consider how you are going to manage erecting memorials based on the new measures.

BRAMM does advise that you log onto Gov.UK to get latest official guidance on the virus which, if you register, will email you daily up-dates.

Please continue to follow Government guidance and stay safe.

The major organisations representing funeral directors and cemeteries and crematoria are currently advocating a risk based approach taking into account Government guidance.

Check with your local cemetery for their new guidelines.

BRAMM will continue to support your business with Technical Advice and providing a closer working relationship with Burial Authorities as well as regular newsletters and industry updates.

Hoping that you and your staff are keeping well and safe during these unprecedented times.

Kind Regards
The BRAMM Team
